A case of some importance has been brought in the Police Court by McColgan & Johnson against F. Moore, Captain of the steamship Mikado, to recover from the defendant a debt alleged to be due the plaintiffs from one Tuttle, who left on the Mikado, on the last voyage to the Colonies, as is alleged without a passport. The law in its terms makes the master of a ship liable for the debts of any passenger whom he conveys out of the Kingdom without a passport. In this case the plaintiff's counsel sued for a process of arrest against the defendant, offering bonds in the sum of $400, in case he failed to get judgment. The defendant's counsel made a special appearance, showing cause why the arrest should not be ordered under our laws, and why high bonds should be required if an arrest was ordered. He then made a general appearance to the summons, and filed a plea to the jurisdiction, on the ground that the case ought to be brought in Admiralty. There are several interesting questions in the case, which we presume will not be allowed to rest short of a final decision by the Supreme Court. Mr. W. C. Jones appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. A. S. Hartwell for the defendant.

UNQUESTIONABLY the public expectation was lisappointed on Wednesday, when it was found that the government semi-official organ contained no word of authoritative explanation as to the real causes which led to the late dissolution of the Cabinet. The Gazette is only "led to infer" that the want of harmony among His Majesty's advisers was in connection with the Appropriation Bill, and so the public, who are immediately and particularly interested as to who hold the responsible offices in the administration of the government, are also "left to infer," in a demoralizing state of uncertainty as to what really were the causes which have deprived the country of the services of two valued public officers.

But though official sources afford no such information as is desired, we can state upon undoubted authority, that the circumstance which alone caused the retirement of the late Attorney General, from the Cabinet, was the inability of -Sailed from Enderbury Island for Europe: Ships Intre- that gentleman to support the Budget as it had been prepared by his colleagues, and as it was placed before the Assembly and the country. The passage throughout, occupying 9 days, resignation. And what is the result? We see was marked by a continuance of fine favorable weather. Arthe Ministry adopting the very course in regard to the Budget which was urged by their late colleague, and the advocacy of which by him was the cause of the lack of "harmony" in the Cabinet. The individual member of the Ministry whose advice it now appears was prudent, patriotic and practicable, is thrown overboard, while those who persistently and to the bitter end opposed that advice, retain office and, inconsistently enough, themselves adopt the policy to defeat which they dissolved the Cabinet. If there is anything fair, just, or measurably high-toned in all this, we fall to see It. We are not, and never shall be, the partisans of any man or set of men either in or out of office, but we hold the principle that the maintenance of a high standard of official consistency and dignity are ultra essential to the preservation of public confidence in any Ministry.

LEGISLATIVE JOTTINGS.

Our record last week ended with Thursday's proceedings. On Friday the announcement of the Ministerial changes, with the bare statement that they had resulted from a want of harmony in the Cabinet, very naturally took many of the members by surprise, and they showed it by their silence. They failed to comprehend the whys and wherefores, but they did not waste any time in guessing at the riddle, and a riddle it doubtless remains to them still. There was scarcely anything of importance transacted during the session of Friday. The reports of the Judiciary Committee, (majority and minority) on the contested election in the district of Wailuku, were interesting. It has become a proverb with those familiar with Hawaiian Legislatures, that once a Representative has taken his seat in the House, it is next to impossible to oust him, no matter what may be proved in regard to the illegality of his election. After reading the statement of the Hon. Mr. Wilder, (the minority of the Comthat will leave the most civilized countries comparatively in the shade.

On Monday the Committee to whom was referred the bill fixing the number of hours that shall constitute a day's work, asked and obtained further time, which is so far encouraging to the opponents of the measure. We shall not be surprised if a majority of members become convinced, before the final vote is taken, that the bill is quite unnecessary and that its operation would really be an injury in the end to both employer and employee.

On Tuesday the Appropriation Bill, which had was reported back to the House without amendment, avowedly for the purpose of giving it to the reorganized Ministry, to remodel. This was eventually done, but not without a spirited opposition from the impracticables, who in this instance had a good deal of apparent reason and propriety on their side. The Ministry gave notice of a bill to abolish the office of "Secretary at War and of the Navy." Shades of the venerated and venerable past What are we coming to? This is portentous of the abolition of a quantity of red tape. The bill providing for a charge of five dollars for stopping a passport, was indefinitely postof the liabilities of ship-masters who may be so debtors out of the kingdom. Indeed, we are informed that it is the intention of the Government to introduce a bill which shall make proper provision for such cases.

The revised Appropriation Bill came in on Wednesday, the Ministry having made good use of the less than twenty-four hours in which they had possession of it by reducing the gross sum appropriated some $127,000. The following are Strike out appropriation for new steamer.... Strike out appropriation, importation of breeding stock teduce appropriation for assessors..... Strike out salary Deputy Marshal..... Reduce salary clerk Attorney General..... Strike out appropriation for museum..... Several other appropriations are somewhat increased, as follows: Put the police of Hawaii up to..... Put the police of Maui up to..... 9,144 Put the police of Kauai up to.....

Nothing was agreed on in the House on Wednesday, over an hour having been consumed in the discussion of the sum to be allowed for His Majesty's Royal State and Privy Purse. While we would gladly have seen the principle adopted in our laws that prison labor shall not be allowed to compete with free, yet the Bill which proposed to accomplish this reform was so hampered with other and impracticable provisions that we the less regret its indefinite postponement on Thursday, after members had sufficiently aired their eloquence and displayed their lack of correct information on the subject generally.

To the Editor of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser. Sin :- In your issue of May 2d, in speaking of the new Government building, now known as Aliiolani House, you conclude by saying that in admiring its fine proportions and artistic finish, it is well to remember that the credit is principally due to Mr. Robert Lishman, the architect and builder.

Let us see how far you were correct, and whether you have given honor to whom honor is due. I have been informed that the plans of the building, now known as Aliiolani House, were drawn by Mr. T. Rowe, No. 561, Pitt street, Sydney, at a cost of $1,200, for a palace, altered here by Mr. Robert Stirling and approved by Dr. Hutchison. The artistic finish, so far as that means the carpenter work, was done by Mr. Wm. Dean; but if the painting and graining is meant, that has been and still is under the charge of Mr. J. W. Gibbs. Perhaps, however, the hard-finish and the ornamental work of the plastering is what is referred to, and if that is so, then that portion of the work was executed by Mr Van Dyke and Mr. T. P. Cleary, who were sent for from abroad, for that purpose. Thus I have indicated who in reality are the men, who if anybody are entitled to the credit for the "fine proportions and artistic finish" of the new Government building. Yours truly, O. P.

From what I know of the Association and of the committee, to which the remarks alluded to are attributable. I feel sure, not only that they have caused much regret to (I think I may say) all be done if the people will it, and in the mean time, members of the Association, but that the writer probable haste or other abnormal circumstance which without pay, whilst the real acting Ministers and has permitted their utterance; and that their author Besten direct has likely been anxious, ere they saw daylight, to modify or withdraw them.

There is nothing in the constitution of the Y. M. C.
